KU KLUX CHIEF GOES ON TRIAL

Phil Fox Nervous As Murder Hearing Opens

GREETS TEXAS FRIENDS

Women Paint Bitter Tale of Shooting

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 13.—Witnesses realistically staged and graphically recited the killing of W. S. Coburn, leader in a factional war in the Ku Klux Klan in the murderer trial of Phil E. Fox, publicity director of the invisible empire," today.

Evidence taken in the trial which it is claimed by the prosecution may involve secrets of the homicidal order began shortly after the jury in superior court was sworn.

Women Eyewitnesses

Two women—Mrs. M. L. Heyman of Cleveland and Mrs. W. A. Hollingshead—the only eye witnesses to the killing, painted a vivid worn picture of Fox with a "demoniacal look in his eyes and a mean scowl on his face," firing shots liberally while the trial historian screamed and moaned.

"Then he threw his gun at Mr. Coburn as if to finish the job," Mrs. Hollingshead declared.

Through all the dramatic recitation Mrs. Coburn and her attorney, Mrs. Coburn, sat openly while Fox said nervously running his fingers through his hair.

Fox Greets Friends

The mask of unconcern which has concealed his emotions will fall from Fox's face when he greeted a dozen friends and former associates from Texas during the noon recess.

Words of encouragement were spoken by the Texans as each in turn shook hands and stated cordially,

DEMOCRATS REFUSE

Texas Senator's Right to Seat Contested by Pddy

By L. C. Price

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The fight to oust Senator Mayfield of Texas from the senate will begin next week.

A motion will be made that the protest now on file with the clerk of the senate be referred to the committee on privileges and elections for investigation, according to Luther Nichols, Dallas, Texas, chief attorney for the forces who are questioning Mayfield's right to a seat.

The klan issue will be avoided until the hearings of the investigating committee actually begin. The appeal for the probe will be based on charges that Mayfield spent $100,000 in the Texas primaries where only $8,000 is permitted by law.

It also will be contended that the election was not legal because the name of George E. B. Pddy, opponent of Mayfield, did not appear upon the ballot.

AUTOS TO CONVEY FOLK

A truck and several automobiles have been secured to convey all persons from Pear Ridge, Griffing, and Kelli's Crossing to the First Christian Sunday school Sunday morning.

The conveyances will leave these points promptly at 9:15 o'clock, and residents of the three places are urged by Rev. R. R. V. Leiberman, pastor of the First Christian church, to attend the Sunday school.

KEEP TOO MUCH TO THEMSELVES

Many men and women of middle age feel that they have never had a chance to make anything out of themselves. But the main reason for it usually is that they let such things as pumpkins, rashes, "breaking out," worms, etc., etc., on their face, neck, hands or arms make them feel that they are not wanted around and therefore keep themselves too much.

You can get just as much out of us anyone. All you need is confidence in yourself, which you get naturally when you rid yourself of those skin troubles, if you just use the won- derful Black and White Ointment. It is incomparably priced, in generous packages. All dealers have it. The 50c size contains three times as much as no 25c size. Adt.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY
Acquainting You With the

FORMAL OPENING
of the
*Jones-O'Neal Furniture Co's.
New Store at Port Arthur
Friday, December 14th*

Featuring a most unusual exhibition of very fine Antique Furniture and the original of the celebrated oil painting, by Rosa Bonheur,

"OLD DARBY"

THIS is the original painting, done by Rosa Bonheur, one of the world's most famous artists, at her home at Fontainebleau, France, in 1884, and art critics and laymen the world over have united in declaring it one of the most marvelous pieces of realism ever put on canvas.

The subject of the picture, "Old Darby," is a venerable white horse, who is seen thrusting his head from a barn door. The canvas measures 7x9 feet and has a commercial value of $65,000. It was never sold until after the death of Rosa Bonheur. It is now the property of the Inside Publicity System of America. Next to the "Horse Fair," which is now the property of the Metropolitan Museum, this picture is the most pretentious of Bonheur's works. Few of her paintings bear the same broad technique that makes "Old Darby" one of her greatest achievements.

In real life "Old Darby" was a fisherman's horse, whose humble mission in life was to drag the fish nets into shore near Havre, France. The artist, always a lover of animals, saw him at his work, and both admiring and pitying him in his old age, bought him and sent him to Fontainebleau, where she used him for several motives. "Old Darby" is truly a labor of love. It is said of Rosa Bonheur that her love of horses was as a mother's love for her children, and it was this love that inspired in her almost superhuman talent in their portrayal—a talent which stamped her as the greatest painter of horses the world has ever known.

Study not only the horse but all the surroundings. How true to life they are. The old broken handled shovel, the rusty milk can, the piece of shoe string used to fasten the door, the weeds growing along the side of the barn, the initial "A" someone has carved in one of the boards—every single detail is perfect.

You Are Cordially Invited to Come
As Our Guest

In addition to this wonderful masterpiece, "Old Darby," we have also arranged to display a fine, old suite of antique furniture. This suite was made in India many, many years ago. So long ago in fact that we do not know the exact date. It is made of Ebony with an elaborate inlay of pearls. We do not believe you have ever seen anything like it before. The suite has a commercial value of $2,500. There are four pieces.

We want every man, woman and child who can come to visit our store on this opening day. We predict that you will feel that your time has been well and pleasantly spent.

On this opening day it is not our intention to make sales.

The caption of this editorial has been chosen as one of the slogans by President Leonard Power of the Port Arthur Business College. It speaks for itself in that the controlling board of the school is actually putting it into practice.

Probably no greater opportunity has been put before the young men and women of Port Arthur for a practical education than that now in force at our Business college. It has gone even further. Special courses are actually in operation that are of great benefit to the man or woman with little or no education. Night classes have been organized for shift men at the two refineries. It matters not what your working hours may be, if interested in bettering yourself you will find school hours at the college are made convenient for you to attend.

The slogan at the head of this editorial is not an idle one. Provision is made for one to work a few days and then attend school for a like period of time. If you are anxious for an education and have no money, funds will be loaned you for that purpose. Of course it must be paid back but provision is also made for that.

There never has been a time in the history of the college that education has been made so easy and at such small cost for the average in dividend as right now.

NEED OF CAUSEWAY BECOMES IMPORTANT

The necessity of a causeway over the Kansas City Southern tracks west of town becomes increasingly important as the town grows and the two large refineries continue to enlarge their plants.

Seventh Street is dangerous at present. Over the K. C. S. tracks here there is probably more traffic than any other street in town. There is a continuous flow of automobiles, carriages and pedestrians all during the day. Thousands of workmen pass to and fro from morning till night and their safety is hardly guarded except perhaps by crossing watchmen and the day of the crossing watchman has long since passed.

As a matter of efficiency and economy the K. C. S. ought of its own accord build a causeway here without its being forced. It should be unnecessary to point out to them the dangers of the present situation and they are dangers real dangers which we cannot afford to let slide. And the time to prevent an accident is not after it has happened. Let's make accidents impossible. There is no good reason why we should have to demand a causeway with the horrible example of several deaths among workmen as an argument. The city has a right and should immediately ask for a causeway as a means of safety and protection for its citizens.

NOT HALF BIG ENOUGH

Mrs. Carry Chapman Catt is on the road this time in the far west, daily declaring that in her opinion neither the democratic or republican party has put forward a presidential candidate half big enough to fill the job. For this reason Mrs. Catt says she is more interested in the "what" of the coming national campaign than in the "who."

Isn't Coolidge half big enough? isn't H. Johnson? Isn't Frank O. Lowden? Isn't William Gibbs McAdoo? Isn't Oscar W. Underwood? Isn't John W. Davis? Isn't Henry Gandy?

But why does Ford into it? He hasn't been too farward by the democratic or republican party. Mrs. Catt is for a wide world peace for which she is making a political job at the expense of the presidents of the United States of the political leaders; but think of the men who are half big enough to fill the

Speeding Cases Drop

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—

BEAUMONT, Dec. 13.—The number of speeders in justice courts dropped to a new low level Thursday morning when just one offender was tried.

Judge Reeves stated that the time for those who plead not guilty to speeding is now $15.50 instead of $15.20 as heretofore. He declared that he had lately received information from the attorney general that under the law the court is entitled to $2 more than it had been charging.

Speeding Cases Drop

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—

BEAUMONT, Dec. 13.—Directly following the recommendation of the city commission that members of the Beaumont police force be placed under civil service rule, came the announcement that two city detectives, C. D. McAlister and J. F. Whitlock, would be reduced from the rank of detective

At all events the fashion she became, and it was quite apparent that she took it as a matter of course. The radiant happiness that possessed her, refusing as she did to look into the future with its menace to those high duties of her former dedication—clear, sharp, ruthless children of her brain—not only enhanced both her beauty and magnetism, but enabled her to endure this social ordeal she had dreaded, without snarl. She was too happy to be bored. She even plunged into it with youthful relish. For the first time in her life she was at peace with herself. She was not at peace when Clavering made love to her, far from it; but she enjoyed with all the zest of a woman with her first lover, and something of the timidity, this tantalizing preliminary to fruition. How could she ever have believed that her mind was old? She turned her imagination away from that lodge in the Dolomites, and believed it was because the present with its happiness and its excitement sufficed her.

"And I wouldn't go," Clavering stood on the hearthring smiling down at her with humorous defiance. "You switched me on to that play, and there I stuck until it is finished. No chance for it in a honeymoon, and no chance for undiluted happiness with that crashing round inside my head."

She shrank and turned cold, but recovered herself sharply and dismissed the pang. It was her first experience, in her exhaustive knowledge of men, of the writing temperament; and after all it was part of the novelty of the man who had obliterated every other from her mind. Nor had she any intention of leaving for Austria tomorrow.

"And I wouldn't go," Clavering stood on the hearthring smiling down at her with humorous defiance.

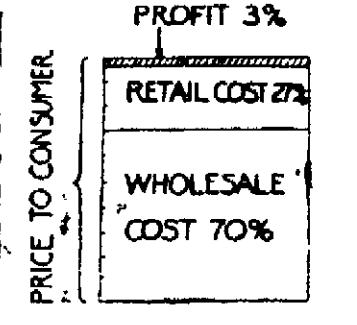

Moreover, she was having one novel experience that afforded her much diversion. The newspapers were full of her. It took exactly five days after Mrs. Oglethorpe's luncheon for the story she had told them to filter down to Park Row, and although she would not consent to be interviewed, there were double-page stories in the Sunday issues, embellished with snapshots and a photograph of the Mary Ogle of the eighties: a photographer who had had the honor

Your Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

AVERAGE MERCHANT MUST KEEP 30% OF GROSS SALES TO STAY IN BUSINESS

A home is one investment where a man has an opportunity for personal management. As in most enterprises, success or failure depends largely on the management.

There is a difference between investing in stock and bonds and a home. Ordinarily when a man invests in stocks and bonds he is concerned primarily in safety and income. The investment may be successful although he never has anything to do with the management.

But a home is different. It is made of brick, stone, wood, or dirt. It is tangible, the owner sees it every day. It is part of him—he is responsible for its success or failure. He can neglect it and still expect it to be a profitable investment.

Almost every one likes to put into the house, but few realize that the amount and efficiency of that effort may mean the success or failure of the investment.

With a good heart, and sound healthy respiratory organs, your lease on life is fairly secure. Be sure that any work or exercise during this second period is never carried to the point of exhaustion.

THE NEWS' SOCIAL AND HOUSEHOLD PAGE

ROCKS BECOME MORE AND MORE FASCINATING WITH ADVANCE OF HOLIDAY SEASON

As the holidays approach, unlady's thoughts just naturally turn to clothes, and she is wondering what she will purchase to wear to the many delightful hospitalities which always go with the holidays.

For the Christmas parties what would be lovelier than a silk or brocaded cloth of silver, made with tight bodice lined at the sides, trimmed with corded piping of taffeta, three different colors—pink, French blue, and gold. At each side of the skirt are painted baskets, done in gold outlined with gold tinsel, the net hemmed with hand-painted roses. Roses of colored metal ribbon applied over the painted decoration.

The bouffant skirt has a deep faceted rufflet in glowing cyclamen, and the bottom is finished cording in the three colors which appear on the bodice. Then black velvet decides to appear in the form of a smart coat, it takes into itself new lines added attractiveness. A chenille frock of just such nature is trim in white georgette, has a black white buckle at the side fastening and a circular flounce on the back. Black jet buttons trim the undersleeves.

A girdle frock for afternoon wear, the thing for the college girl, a tan jersey, smocked in brown, has bishop sleeves, also smocked, mother charming gown is of organdy and brocade—the velvet forming a band down the front joined to a band of velvet at the hem. In such a velvet panel is hung from shoulder and folds to the floor on a train. Sheerless, waist-beltless, washless, gathering, drapery, sans bounces, godets—everything but a tub of mayonnaise held over the shoulders by two ribbons straps and a length of velvet down the back that may be the stretch of imagination. Be a train. It is the epitome of beauty, and yet one of the smartest gowns seen recently, among all the characters, twills and appears an unusually pretty of brown duchess; embroidered down and gold, and trimmed with the cambric skirt, with its fabric ties, is made separate from the blouse. Huge brown silk bow, thin the narrow belt.

TRACTIVELY APPOINTED hospitality of Tuesday was Mrs. E. Biggin's charming bridge party at her home, 3021 Procter street, personnel of guests including mothers of the Wednesday Sewing Club and additional friends.

Red and shiny yellow chrysanthemums were used as the floral arrangement, being placed artistically vantage points about the reception where four tables were arranged to accommodate the players.

Bridge table appointments reflect the yellow theme in clever manner. High score in the games.

C. C. Harrell was presented with a beautiful prize and charming favors were presented to him. R. Holmes of Houston, Mrs. Irene Blanchard of Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Fred Manley of Houston, lovely satin corsage was offered for the games.

Color Cut-out

From Santa's Toy Shop

"Do you know what Mrs. Santa Claus does all the year round?"

Betty Cut-out asked her brother, Billy.

"None," answered Billy, cutting a table leg.

"I never did either till we got up the Toy Shop play," Betty told him, "but she works all the year making dolls, dresses and doll tables, and chairs like we are making for the hospital children."

This table is not hard to make if you cut it carefully. The long strip for the legs should be 25 inches long and 4 3/4 inches wide. With your ruler, mark off the legs, which are one inch wide. Leave 4 1/2 inches between the first and second legs, 6 inches between the second and third and 4 1/2 inches between the third and fourth, then a 6 inch flap to fasten around the first leg. When you fold the table, clip the band so it will fold inside at the corners, so it will be flat and a top 7 inches by 5 inches can be pasted on flat.

The boy made his departure, Mrs. A. M. Korn, Mrs. Dewey Bostic and Mrs. Barrett entered the room drawing a small wagon filled with many prettily decorated packages, which upon being opened were found to be lovely gifts for Miss Allen from her admiring friends. Miss Allen's marriage to Mr. Benton E. Lansky will take place next Tuesday evening at the W. B. A. of the Macabees having received an invitation as a guest to attend the ceremony.

Announcement was made that the annual exchange of gifts, which has been featured the past fifteen years by the women, will be held on Wednesday, December 26, at 2:30 o'clock at the hall. Mrs. George Collins will have charge of the distribution of gifts.

The next Progressive Club meeting will be held on January 18 at the home of Mrs. E. B. Hunt.

The Tangles

LETTER FROM MRS. ADDIE GRETCHEN HAMMOND TO LEILA PINECOTT.

My Dear Daughter:

I can't understand why we have not received a letter from you lately. Your father said the other day with a queer little smile that he expected he would have to be dangerous ill again if he wanted to bore you with any regularity. You were so faithful while he was ill that I expect you got him into the bad habit of expecting a daily letter.

Of course, dear, I know how it is because we are very human when we decide to go to England with her that I hoped at the time that she and Karl would make a match.

Lately, however, she has seemed to be a little worried about something and has kept asking questions about you and your affairs. Among other things she asked me if you had your beads strung. I expect means those pearl beads she gave you. I did not know you had broken them.

We are leaving day after tomorrow for New York and will be in town about a week. Do you suppose you could leave that blessed baby of yours in Nannie's care long enough to come down and stay a day or two with us?

Telephone me if this can be done. Lovingly, father and I would be delighted as we are both very fond of him.

She has been talking a great deal lately in my letters about a young Englishman and I'd like to go over and see for myself what chance Karl has with her. You know, Leslie, that Alice is very headstrong about her own affairs. I have always felt that in her great admiration for Karl she felt that you did not treat him right—in fact, I heard her say so once—when you married John. Then she was very happy when he decided to go to England with her that I hoped at the time that she and Karl would make a match.

for living hope that give no evidence of their faith in Jesus Christ as a personalaviour.

Dr. Leavell used two texts of Scripture, first, Romans 3:1, "Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ," and second, James 2:22, "Was not Abraham our father, justified by works in that he offered up Isaac his son on the altar?" and James 2:22, "Ye see that by works a man is justified and not only by faith."

"Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as a personalaviour justifies a man or woman in their salvation, but after that, faith is perfected, developed and made to count for God," the evangelist said. "The religion of Jesus Christ is a religion that makes people work because they want to work for their Saviour, and when professing Christians and church members will not work and live for Christ, I doubt if they ever truly accepted Him and his religion. Their faith without works is dead," Dr. Leavell said.

Services are being conducted in the church during each noon hour by Dr. Leavell, and also each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

During his travels, Dr. Farmer has adopted a policy of concentrating on strategic centers and building and strengthening them rather than diverting the funds so widely as explained to the conference by Dr. Mueller.

The case of Trinity church in San Antonio, receiving a large amount of the funds allocated to this district was stressed when Dr. H. C. Rose pastor of the San Antonio church asked why his church had been forced to so much money and other churches in the district could not get a cent from the board.

Field Worker Here

Dr. Mueller also explained to the ministers that financing of a $1,000,000 church building in the heart of Chicago's business district did not take funds from any church funds except those right around Chicago, and then only after these churches had voted to concentrate their apportionments on the Chicago church building.

"Over in the Scandinavian countries the general superintendent appointed is doing such a wonderful work that the board has to watch him to keep him from working himself to death," Dr. Farmer said.

Factors Cheapen Marriage

"Our bishop's work among the Finns has been so marvelous that the board has been asked to loan him to the church in Detroit, that he may stay among the vast number of Finns in that city whom other workers and denominations have been unable to reach."

In a comprehensive sketch of the entire foreign missionary activities of the denomination, Dr. Farmer carried being placed upon the sanctity of the world in his address. He stressed particularly the work of the church in other churches in the district could not get a cent from the board.

During the 20-year period between 1886 and 1906 there were 915,823 divisions granted in the United States, or more than double the number granted in the 19 leading European nations combined, Dr. Smith said. The number of divorces granted in the United States in 1916, shown in records to be 112,000, is one for every nine marriages recorded during the year, he said.

Probation a Success

It would be easier to level Gibraltar with a feather than to tear the prohibition amendment from the constitution of the United States, Dr. Raymond V. Johnson, of Washington, D. C., field secretary of the M. E. church board of temperance, prohibition and public morals told the Gulf district conference Wednesday night when he addressed the gathering on the Eighteenth Amendment and World-Wide prohibition.

In Johnson cited columnists examples of the success of prohibition in this country, pointing out that crime has diminished, deaths from alcohol poisoning, typhoid, Bright's disease,

heart trouble and other causes has

been cut, while charitable institutions,

particularly in the large cities, are now practically vacant.

Foreign Field Discouraged

Reorganizing of the foreign field work of the Methodist church with the appointment of 17 general superintendents, upon whom the titles of bishops were conferred, and sending them into various foreign lands, and the growth and development of the missionary work carried on in the denomination were brought before the conference by Dr. Farmer, who was for 12 years a missionary in the Philippines.

"The church at home hasn't kept pace with God," Dr. Farmer declared, giving examples of the phenomenal growth of the work in foreign fields and the urgent appeals sent in by the missionaries for funds to press on into new territories and expand and develop in their localities.

Field Worker Here

During the 20-year period between 1886 and 1906 there were 915,823 di-

vances granted in the United States, or more than double the number granted in the 19 leading European nations combined, Dr. Smith said. The number of divorces granted in the United States in 1916, shown in records to be 112,000, is one for every nine marriages recorded during the year, he said.

Divorce a Symptom

It would be easier to level Gibraltar with a feather than to tear the prohibition amendment from the constitution of the United States, Dr. Raymond V. Johnson, of Washington, D. C., field secretary of the M. E. church board of temperance, prohibition and public morals told the Gulf district conference Wednesday night when he addressed the gathering on the Eighteenth Amendment and World-Wide prohibition.

In Johnson cited columnists examples of the success of prohibition in this country, pointing out that crime has diminished, deaths from alcohol poisoning, typhoid, Bright's disease,

heart trouble and other causes has

been cut, while charitable institutions,

particularly in the large cities, are now practically vacant.

Actor Holds Ecklund to Draw-Finish With Grueling

City's Pride Comes From Behind to End Sensational Battle

Title-Holder Topsles Grecian Athlete First Fall, But Loses Second on Technical Collapse; Fandom Kept On Edge

BATTLING against the terrific odds of a master-mind at the game, setting a finished grappler to whom the most intricate trick of the mat was simple, George Vassel Actor, "pride of Port Arthur," and the nerviest Greek that ever stepped in the squared arena here, came from behind last night in Elks Theater, and, through effective use of a series of headlocks, crumpled Clarence Ecklund, light heavyweight champion of the world, for a draw-finish.

It was decidedly the most sensational wrestling match Will Fort has promoted.

Not a minute lagged; not a second dragged, Ecklund, systematically carrying out a methodical attack—the attack that made him champion years ago—fought, tugged, pulled, squirmed into an aggressive fray. Actor, towering slightly above his adversary, and claiming the edge on weight, was always on his toes, waiting, waiting, waiting for the first fall.

Ecklund claimed the first fall with a hammer-lock, after an hour, 12 minutes and 40 seconds. Consistently he had sought to clamp the hurt-hold of Actor's toes, wrench on the lap arm-lock, or clinch the headlock, all to no avail. His fall came when, after the first hour had passed, he rushed the Port Arthur artist, and clamped on the vice-like hammer-lock.

Actor returned to the arena with determination written on his face, and to those who sat close by, there was something else there to read, too. It was worry.

The first ten minutes of the second stanza had hardly been claimed out by the timekeeper when Actor suddenly lunged at the champion, snipped his bobbing head in a grip of steel and wrenched with all his strength. It seemed that Actor was making a final stand to crush the speedier grappler who struck constantly at his body, stinging here, stinging there.

When Ecklund broke away, he staggered; the crowd came to its feet, howling mass of humanity, shrieking for Actor to "put 'im away." George put 'im away." And Actor, as if to appease the wishes of that winchings mob, lunged high in the air, clamped again the grip of steel round the toughest head he's tugged at and bore the champion to the mat.

Again Ecklund broke away, staggered, waved weakened arms in a feeble griped his way toward Actor. Again the challenger clamped the headlock; and again and again they bore, clinched.

Suddenly two heavy bodies hung to the floor with a thud, and Actor, his persistent headlock clinched tight, was atop the champion. Once twice he wrenched strong arms about Ecklund's head, then an arm moved slowly to Ecklund's side. Instantly Actor grabbed it, pushed a knee to the title-holder's side, and pulled at the Japanese arm-lock. Once, once, grueling most-frenzied hold of the mat.

Ecklund's shoulders rolled over, passed the mat. At instant they hung there almost limp; then the champion, as if struggling in last vain effort to shake himself free, moved and collapsed, technically beaten, groggy, all but out. The crowd, howling, frenzied, surged toward the arena. Referee Vic Miller pulled Actor to his feet and proclaimed him victor of the second fall. The official time keeper, Gus A. Flaherty, conferred with the referee for second. Then the official, announced Gale Banks, pushed his way through the mob that had rushed into the ring. He shouted out: "Actor wins second in 40 minutes, 20 seconds, using series of headlocks and the Japanese lock."

The match was over; less than five minutes remained on the dial of the watches for the heavyweights to battle; neither could gain any advantage in that time, although Actor resumed his grueling, punishing headlock attack. George Actor, the "pride of Port Arthur," had crushed a light heavyweight champion's pride.

His title was at stake last night; the men wrestled at catch weights. Actor being weighed in at 185 pounds, at Ecklund at 175. No doubt Actor's 16 pounds aided him some, but the players are had he did not discover. Even in the "glass spot," the match may have been a draw.

He prelims opened the show to a packed house at 7:30, when Youngie Conch, 160-pound grappler, and K. Horn, 155 pounder of New York City, went on in a 15-minute curtain raiser. No winter was declared, the men grappling, catching weights, exhibition style. Laelene Thivier and M. J. Perry, 170-pound partners of all the cards, furnished an exciting 10-minute match for a fall; however, the bout ended a draw.

The main show started about 8:22, when Actor and Ecklund were introduced to the host of auditors as the main performers, with Vic Miller, veteran wrestler, as third man in the ring.

VARSITY STAR RETURNS HOME

Ed Bluestein Uses Crutch For Injured Leg

Editor Bluestein, buckling up his university bag, lunged forward in an unanimous decision of the eastern coaches as the best all-around athlete of the year. Last Arthur this year, he is back home, his school days over, his career, much of which he had planned, ended.

He was walking on crutches and a leg which must be fitted for the game he had lost for the plaster cast.

Bill Archer, athlete, who has the best record in tennis, won the title of champion, which he has held for three years. He is one of the most popular young southern boys, and is a son of Tom and Ethel Bluestein, best friends

"Simple Life for Me," Says Babe Ruth

BY BILLY EVANS

The simple life did it. If you asked Babe Ruth how he got the greatest accolades in the history of sports, that would be his reply.

When the season of 1922 was over, he was a close with the absolute top in New York Yankees Babe Ruth was in winter quarters at his home.

During the season his play had shown expectations and in the end he was a positive asset.

He was walking on crutches and a leg which must be fitted for the game he had lost for the plaster cast.

Babe Doing Stunts on the Farm

Strong for Simple Life

"Simple life did it," he told New York when he left Brooklyn and its bright lights goodbye. "The bunk," echoed the sport experts.

I had a chat with the Babe just prior to his departure for the farm and the simple life. I realized he had the best intentions but wondered if he had the old determination to carry them through.

This spring I met Babe Ruth in the lobby of the Greenway Hotel in New Orleans. I had just hit the town on my tour of the training camps. Ruth was chattering with Manager Miller Huggins.

Never had I seen Ruth in such excellent physical condition. He was lighter than at any time in his career, scaling just a trifle over 200.

I congratulated him on how well he looked.

"The simple life down on the farm did it," he replied, "and you can tell the world I am going to fool a lot of the wise guys who insisted I was through."

"Loss of weight has made me much faster. Reducing the waistline and the chest measurement has given me a much freer arm movement with the result that I have improved my throwing 50 per cent. Incidentally I am

Ruth feeds the chickens, much to the delight of baby Dorothy. Then to prove the home-run eye is still in trim shoots the head of an Indian in to a sheet of tin.

In one season you weighed around 200 all year," said Manager Huggins.

"True," replied the Babe, "but all I did that year was make home runs. This year I am going to be a regular ball player, do a bit of everything."

through swinging at every pitch—I'm going to keep them over, make the pitchers pitch to me."

The comeback of Babe Ruth is baseball history. He did everything he said he would and then some. He topped off by being the hero instead of the bust of the 1923 world series.

The Babe has profited by experience. He is again spending the winter at dear old Sudbury and keeping fit by hunting, doing the chores

PARKE RECITES WINNING RULES

And Heads List With Three Hots Daily

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—Jockey Ivan Parke, the 17-year-old marvel of the racing world, today gave rules for retaining the steady hand and a clear head which have enabled him to bring home 148 winners since last March.

These hardly needs a day, once in a while a motion picture show, and in bed at 9 o'clock every night," Parke said.

Parke, now riding for the Goldblatt and Whitney stables here, has brought home 23 winners at Jefferson Park track here since Thanksgiving day.

"There's nothing to this stuff about dieting and growing thin," the boy of the American turf said. "I eat regular and plenty."

"I guess it is because I am young that I am able to keep down to weight, although I do eat what kind when I want."

Whenever "Parke is up" at Jefferson Park, the racing crowds know that the few who are going to get ride for their money. Many bets are made on horses that Parke rides for no other reason than because he is the jockey.

The refereeing, conducted by Vic Miller, retired grappler, was above par, and Miller not only acted wise by stopping the second full when he did, but he pleased the large and jury of the fans. Ecklund was technically out. He was too giddy to go on; only a heartless man in his respect for his fellow man can stand in the center of the ring and watch a wrestler crush another into insensibility.

Ecklund was too weak to go on. Actor laid him at his mercy.

What more could desirous? Miller is to be commended rather than condemned for his wise judgment, and those who howled unduly and unmerciful remarks at Ecklund because the match was carried out according to the exact letter of the rules do him a gross injustice.

No one heard Actor complain, because Actor knew as well as every other person familiar with the rules that the match was to end at the termination of two hours, win, lose or draw, unless both should agree to continue for 30 minutes.

PLAYERS SOLD

Frank Isbell of the Wichita club sold Outfielder Johnnie Conlan to the Rochester club yesterday. Conlan is considered a major league prospect.

Pittsburgh bought Roy Kramer, pitcher of the Oakland club of the Coast League, for cash and three players.

Committees representing the Pacific coast and the American Association discussed adoption of a modified draft at the league pow-wow yesterday.

The International League, also non-draft, did not participate, in spite of a request to do so.

May Sign Dempsey For Three Big Shows

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The dynamic king of baseball still sits on his throne.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the fiery commissioner of baseball, crushed his opposition with a torrid speech to the joint meeting of the American and National league owners late yesterday, and concluded with the dictum, "to take it or leave it."

While the happenings at the meeting are being held secret, it was learned on excellent authority that the judge did not give his enemies an opportunity to start an offensive. He leaped to the attack. He used a few harsh words, including a charge that certain folks are "kitchenish." He headed off an attack on his musclemen by stating he had the vouchers for every cent expended.

Lands held the minute he was fed on the glass and slurs bopped him, and ended by offering to give up his $50,000 a year job. The most recent ended with the judge winning almost every point.

When Ban B. Johnson, president of the American league, walked from the room, he was asked whether Landis had applied the word "swine" to anyone in particular.

"Well, he didn't use exactly that word," was Ban's reply.

Johnson, who is the champion and his manager, Jack Dempsey, engaged in return matches with Luis Firpo and Tommy Gibbons and he will also offer Harry Wills a chance at the title if he feels that he would not encounter any of the well-known obstacles that blocked previous efforts to make the match.

"I am not so very big, nor yet so very small."

This was the next riddle the Riddle Lady asked:

"I am not so very big, nor yet so very small,

Sometimes I am flat and then again I am tall,

Sometimes I am stout, but often I am lean,

And I come in day shade at all from bottle blue to green."

I don't like life indoors, I much prefer outside,

And yet I never walk, I always take a ride,

My fortune's always good, it seldom takes a drop,

My friends say it's remarkable how I come out on top."

"I cannot run, I never race, but if the truth be said,

No matter where I promenade, I'm always on a head,

I'm quiet in my habits, on sea or air or land,

But then again I must confess, I often have a hand."

"Now this no doubt will make you laugh, I haven't any head,

But wait, my friends, and spare your chaff, I have a crown instead

I never eat; I never drink to keep in proper trim,

And yet in nine times out of ten, I'm filled up to the brim!"

"Dear! Dear!" declared the Wise Man to Nick. "I never heard such a hard riddle in my life. I just know I can't guess it. I might try jumping."

HUMAN RACE

Chapter 20—How Boats

In the late Stone Age men made much better boats than we have described before. They now had hatchets and axes with handles, and they cut away much of each log, making it flat and board-like. The boards were fastened together. There were no nails in those days, but rope had been invented. Rope was used to hold the planks or planks in place.

Even if such planks were fitted together in a very careful manner, the boat would leak. To guard against this, the gnarly sap of pine trees is believed to have been placed in cracks. This made the boats water tight.

The boats were no good, in fact, that men used them to travel hundreds of miles over the North Sea and Mediterranean sea. One proof of this is the presence of dolmens (huge stone tombs) on islands of those seas. All dolmens, it seems, were built by the same race, who spread over Europe, Asia and northern Africa. The only way these people could have got to the island was by using boats.

Another thing that seems very likely is that oars were in use in the time of which we speak. These made men able to move their boats better than they could with pushing-sticks or paddles.

The first trial of the oar may have come when a certain man became tired of paddling. Let us suppose that his boat had been built in a rough manner and that some of the main sticks which helped keep the planks together worked up over either side.

The man rested his paddle against the end of one of the sticks. He happened to pull the paddle back, and noticed it made the boat move. The movement was sideways. It is true, but the idea of moving a boat in such a manner was there.

By and by, man learned to pull paddles (or oars) against the ends of sticks on both sides of a boat. They now built their boats much larger than in former times, and rowed them hundreds of miles, often over stormy seas.

WALL STREET JOURNAL FINANCIAL REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Stocks swayed into a vigorous rally yesterday, the general market operation for the rise spreading to practically every section of the list.

Even the Northwest saw rails participated in the general rally. Northern Pacific and Great Northern headed the advance in the group when it became known that the Chicago and Northwestern division reduction by no means preaged a cut in their earnings.

A spirit of rampant bullishness prevailed in a broad group of industrial stocks. Among the most shares widely demanded preferred, included the Steel Company, Standard Oil, and Nickel. Trucks also had the way to higher ground; Cerro de Pasco led the copperers. Baldwin the equipments, Pacific Gas and Electric the public utilities. S. Steel Company, International and Vickers the steel stocks; Cuban preferred, American Beet and Iberia the sugars and Dawson Chemical, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Tabularizing. Regarding the specialized stocks, there were the market's unmistakable indications of test technical strength.
